Dear Siobhan,

On behalf of the Scottish Branch of the British Institute of Non-Destructive Testing, I would like to thank you for the presentation on Recent Advancements in Medical Ultrasound that you delivered at our Branch meeting on 3 October 2013 at Doosan Babcock's Technology Centre in Renfrew.

Your presentation was well-attended and evidently well-received as demonstrated by the extended Q&A session afterwards. I'm not sure if you realised but one of the audience members, who was clearly impressed with your presentation and asked you a number of questions, was Professor Ian Donald (now retired). Prof Donald was a member of the Glasgow University pioneering research team that performed the first experiments (using ultrasonic equipment at Babcock's) with ultrasound on animals and humans.

Many thanks for taking the time to prepare and present such an interesting subject.

Yours sincerely,

Fraser Hardie
