Personal Reflection:

It was interesting to discover that coverage of the right iliac vein with the left common iliac stent is safe with low DVT rate. I assumed that a flush placement of the stent at the ileo-caval confluence would be preferential. However, the success of the mechanical, invasive procedure relies heavily on a detailed pre operative history, accurate imaging, post operative anticoagulation regime that the patient will adhere to. This condition is multifactorial with a multifactorial approach to resolution. Being involved in pre and post op pathway for these patients, it highlights how important our role is in patient care.
