Personal Reflection:

This paper reminds me of work I was doing in the 1990s looking at popliteal entrapment (mainly with CW Doppler looking for waveform changes) alongside a vascular surgeon with experience of working with the military where this was a common problem. Today I rarely see these patients but good to read the paper and see the progress. Also reminds me of other work with CW Doppler looking at lower limb arterial disease and some basic measurements which are often overlooked in today's world.
